(A) INTRODUCTION

It is said of the HENRY Family—"an honorable ancestry, a countless posterity and a 'set way' are their three-fold birthright."

The Henry family has been prominent in the British Empire and in America, its members having played important roles in war and in peace. Family pride is a commendable trait and should be cultivated. All Henrys have just cause to be proud of their family history and traditions.

Authorities on the origin and meaning of family names have the following to say in regard to the name HENRY:

"HENRY: Whence come Harrison, Harris, Hawson, Hawkins, Halse, Hawes, Hallet, Hacket, Allcock, Parry, Harriman (servant of Harry), Hall. Henry, or more properly speaking, 'Harry', owes much to the Plantagenets, for but three are to be found in Domesday Book. With its long line of monarchs, albeit, it represented a curious mixture of good, bad, and indifferent qualities that dynasty could not but stamp itself decisively on our registers. Thus we have still plenty of 'Henrys', 'Harrisons', 'Hallets', etc."

The data in this volume is gathered from reliable sources. Those desiring further information are advised to consult volumes mentioned in list of references given in the back of this volume. The writer and his associates will be glad to give their co-operation to any members of the family who may be interested in having a complete genealogy of the family published.

Unless otherwise plainly shown, the persons in this volume whose names are accompanied by three figures are sons or daughters of the immediately preceding persons bearing immediately preceding consecutive numbers. All persons in each group, bearing the same letter as a part of their respective numbers, are directly related. The generations of the descendants of those bearing numbers of three figures are represented as follows:

Generations:	1st	2nd	3rd	4th	5th	6th	7th	8th	9th	10th
Symbols:	(1), etc.	(A), etc.	(a), etc.	1, etc.	A, etc.	a, etc.	(I), etc.	(i), etc.	I, etc.	i, etc.

ABBREVIATIONS: Ad., address; b., born; ch., children; coll., college; d., died; d. y., died young; d. w. i., died without issue; dau., daughter; grad., graduated; l., lives, lived; m., married, moved; s., son; univ., university.

Many old American families have formed associations, and some of them hold annual reunions. Local reunions have been held by various branches of the Henry family from time to time. There is some interest in the forming of a National Henry Family Association and the holding of a National Reunion.

Information regarding the Henry Coat of Arms will be found in Chapter (B). Attention is also invited to Chapter (P).

The compiler hopes that, in producing this volume, he is bringing to the Henry Family of the World information which will be of interest and value to them, and that he is rendering an important service to the public. We are very desirous of receiving any additional data of unusual interest and members of the family who have such data are respectfully requested to send us copies thereof.

(B) THE HENRY COAT OF ARMS

A Coat of Arms is an emblem which is displayed by titled persons, persons of royal blood, and their descendants.

Coats of Arms were originally used for purposes of identification and recognition on the field of battle as well as in civil life.

It is claimed by some writers that Coats of Arms, in a crude form, were used by Noah's sons after the flood. There are records of other Coats of Arms, in one crude form or another, at different periods of ancient history. Heraldry, however, as we know it today, did not become of much importance until soon after the invasion of England by William the Conqueror, A. D. 1066. Heraldry became of general interest at about the time of the Crusades.

The Coat of Arms shown on the cover of this book is the Arms of the HENRYS of "North Ireland."

There is another Coat of Arms which is more generally used by the HENRY Families, especially the HENRYS of East Dene, Ireland, and Kylemore, Galway, Scotland. This Coat of Arms is described in numerous reliable works on heraldry (in Heraldic parlance) as follows:

ARMS: Per pale indented ar. and gu. on the dexter side a rose of the second, a chief az. charged with a lion pass. of the first.

CREST: Out of the crown ppr. a demi lion rampant ar. holding between the paws a ducal coronet or.

MOTTO: Vincit Veritas. (Truth Prevails.)

It was our intention to reproduce the latter Coat of Arms, instead of the first mentioned, on the cover of this book, but unfortunately, although we made many efforts, we did not succeed in getting a clear copy for reproduction.

If any of our readers have a copy of this Coat of Arms they could send to us for inspection, we will have copies thereof made and sent them for their submitting original. It is also our intention to have elaborately hand-painted copies produced, at a reasonable price for those who desire to purchase them.

There is another Coat of Arms used by the HENRYS which has a Pelican as a Crest.

(C) ANCIENT HENRY FAMILIES

It is said that the original Henry ancestors "were of the Norman Race." Their early descendants lived in Campbellton, Argyleshire, Ayrshire, Scotland. Some of the Henrys were Coventries (Presbyterian) and fled from Ayrshire to Ireland, about A. D. 1615, to escape persecution.

John Henry held lands in Coleraine, 1681. Many of the Henrys lived also in Londonderry. Many of the Henrys now living in the United States are descendants of ancestors who settled in North Ireland.

The following titled Henry Family is listed in BURKE'S GENERAL ARMORY: Kylemore Lodge, Letterfrack, co. Gallway, and Stratheden House, Knightsbridge, co. Middlesex.

(D) PROMINENT BRITISH HENRYS, PAST GENERATIONS

Following are some of the prominent Henrys in the British Empire, past generations:

JAMES H— (1798-1876): Classical scholar and physician; b. in Dublin; s. of Robert, Woolen draper, College Green, Dublin; he was educated by Mr. Hutton, a Unitarian, and by Mr. George Downes, and proceeded to Trinity College, Dublin, where he became scholar, 1817; classical gold medallist, 1818; B. A. 1819; M. A. and M. B., 1822; M. D. November, 1832. His tutor at college was Dr. Mooney. Henry obtained a large medical practice at Dublin; he was often engaged in professional controversies; he said no doctor's opinion was worth a guinea, and only charged a five-shilling fee; he made no charge for medicines, and kept an apothecary at one hundred pounds a year to prepare them; he gave up his profession in 1845, having acquired some fortune in addition to a large legacy; he began serious study of Virgil's "Aeneid" about 1841; from 1841 the study of Virgil became the absorbing object of his life; about 1846 he began to walk through Europe with his wife and daughter, making Virgilian researches; they wandered on foot through all parts of Europe, hunting for manuscripts and rare editions of Virgil; they visited the libraries of Dresden, Florence, Heidelberg, Leghorn, etc., and crossed the Alps seventeen times, sometimes in snow; his "long white locks and somewhat fantastic dress were combined with great beauty and vivacity of countenance, and a rare geniality and vigor of discourse; as a Virgilian commentator Henry was acute, original, and profoundly laborious and scholars praise him highly, frequently quoting his notes; he published his manuscripts on the 'Aeneid'."

JOHN (1731-1829): British naval officer; present at the capture of Havana; in November, 1777, was promoted to captaincy for gallantry at Mud Island in the Delaware River; in May, 1778, he aided in destroying American vessels in the Chesapeake; he distinguished himself in the "Towey" in 1779 as commander of the naval force at Savannah, when it was attacked by D'Estaing, and in 1804 became an admiral.

MATTHEW (1662-1714): Non-conformist divine and commentator; s. Philip H.; he owed most of his early education to his father; he entered the academy of Thomas Doolittle in July, 1680, and remained there till 1682; on coming of age, 1683, he entered on the estate of Bronington, Flintshire, inherited from Daniel Matthews, his maternal grandfather; he began to study law and was admitted at Gray's Inn May, 1685; in June, 1686, he began to preach in his father's neighborhood; he was privately ordained in London at the house of Richard Steel, May, 1687; he began his ministry at Chester, June, 1687; a meeting house was erected for Henry in Crook Lane (since called Crook Street), 1700; his communicants now numbered 350; he preached to the prisoners in the castle; he declined overtures from London congregations at Hackney and Salters' Hall, from Manchester and Silver Street.

ROBERT (1718-1790): Historian, s. James H., farmer, of Muirton, parish of St. Ninian's, Stirlingshire; after attending the parish school of St. Ninian's and the grammar school of Stirling, he entered the Univ. of Edinburgh with the view of studying for the church; on completing his studies he became master of the grammar school at Annan; he was licensed to preach on March 27, 1746, and in November, 1748, was ordained minister of a congregation of Presbyterian dissenters at Carlisle; in November, 1760, he became pastor of the "High Meeting House", Berwick-on-Tweed; he had commenced his "History of England on a New Plan" in 1763, but found residence in Berwick an almost insuperable obstacle to the proper accomplishment of such a work; his difficulties were, however, removed by his being appointed in November, 1768, minister of New Grey Friars Church, Edinburgh, through the influence of Lord-provost Lawrie, of Edinburgh, who had married his sister; in 1771 he received the degree of D. D. from the Univ. of Edinburgh, and in 1774 was chosen moderator of the general assembly; he was transferred in 1776 to the collegiate charge of Old Grey Friars Church, where he remained till his death; the first volume of Henry's "History of England" appeared in 1771, the second in 1774, the third in 1777, the fourth in 1781, the fifth in 1785, and the sixth, edited by Laing, posthumously in 1793; the work embraces the period from the invasion of the Romans until the death of Henry VIII; his history was translated into French in 1789-96, and passed also into several English editions; his books were bequeathed to the magistrates of Linlithgow, to form the nucleus of a public library.

THOMAS (1734-1816): Chemist; b. Wrexham; educated at the grammar school there; his father had come to Wales from Antrim; on leaving school Thomas was apprenticed at Wrexham to an apothecary; at the termination of which he became assistant to an apothecary named Malbon at Oxford; while there he attended anatomical lectures; returning to Knutsford in 1759, he began business on his own account; he removed five years later to Manchester and succeeded to the business of a surgeon-apothecary in St. Anne's Square; he now energetically devoted himself to the study of chemistry; in 1771 he communicated to the Royal College of Physicians "An Improved Method of Preparing Magnesia Alba", which was published; his process of preparing calcined magnesia was communicated to the Royal College of Physicians without any reservation but, at the suggestion of the president of the college and other leading medical men, he took out a patent and prepared it for sale; it became a lucrative property; he was admitted a fellow of the Royal Society in 1775, on the recommendation of Sir John Pringle and Dr. Priestley; some years later he was elected a member of the American Philosophical Society at the instance of Dr. Franklin; on the organization of the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society in 1781 he was appointed one of its secretaries; he became its president in 1807 and retained the position during the rest of his life; he helped to establish in Manchester a College of Arts and Sciences, in connection with which he delivered several courses of lectures on chemistry; he also lectured on bleaching, dyeing and calico-printing; he was clear-headed, ready, and practical; he was an early member of one of the first societies for the abolition of the African slave trade.

SIR THOMAS (1807-1876): Police magistrate; s. David H., of St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, head of the firm of Henry, Mullins & MacMahon, government contractors; b. Dublin; he was educated at Von Feinagle's school in Dublin and at Trinity College, where he graduated B. A., 1824, and M. A., 1827; on January 23, 1829, he was called to the bar at the Middle Temple, went the northern circuit, and attended the West Riding of Yorkshire sessions; he was magistrate at the Lambeth Street police court, Whitechapel, from April, 1840, until 1846; was transferred to Bow Street and became chief magistrate there, 1864; knighted in November, 1864; he was for many years the chief adviser of the government on all questions of administrative and correctional police, and his opinion was acted upon in the various licensing bills, the betting acts, Sunday trading legislation, and similar measures.

WILLIAM, D. D. (d. 1768): Dean of Killaloe; was probably a native of Gloucestershire, and was educated at the University of Dublin; he proceeded M. A. 1748, and B. D. and D. D. 1750; he was the friend and chaplain to Dr. Josiah Hort, who was consecrated to the see of Ferns in 1721; by this prelate he was collated to the benefice of Killesher, diocese of Kilmore, County Fermanagh, 1731; he became rector of Urney, diocese of Derry, County Tyrone, in 1734, and dean of Killaloe, 1761; Henry was a popular preacher, a keen observer of natural history and phenomena, and an earnest advocate both for temperance and for civil and religious liberty; he was elected F. R. S. of London, 1755; at least twelve of his single sermons were printed, and three of his papers, read before the Royal Society, appear in the "Philosophical transactions."

WILLIAM (1774-1836): Chemist; s. Thomas H., F. R. S.; b. Manchester; was educated at the Manchester Academy under Rev. Ralph Harrison; after five years spent with Dr. Thomas Percival he removed, in the winter of 1795-96, to the University of Edinburgh, where he attended the lectures of Dr. Black on chemistry; he afterwards assisted his father in general medical practice at Manchester, but returned to Edinburgh in 1850 and took the degree of M. D. in 1807, the title of his inaugural dissertation being "De Acido Urico et Morbis a nimia ejus secretions ortis"; meanwhile he had communicated to the Royal Society a paper on carbonated hydrogenous gas (1797), another on muriatic acid (1800), and the results of important experiments he had carried on with regard to the quantity of gases absorbed by water at different temperatures and under different pressures (1803); other contributions on the results of investigations into the chemistry of aeriform bodies were subsequently made to the same society up to 1824, as well as to the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society; in 1799 he delivered a course of lectures on chemistry at Manchester and published "A General View of the Nature and Objects of Chemistry, and of its application to Arts and Manufactures"; in 1801 he issued "An Epitome of Chemistry", which was afterwards much expanded, and the title changed to "The Elements of Experimental Chemistry"; it went through eleven editions; to medical science he contributed several papers on calculi, diabetes, etc., as well as observations on cases which fell under his notice as physician to the Manchester Infirmary; an elaborate report on cholera from his pen appeared in the report of the British Association for 1834; he was admitted a fellow of the Geological Society of London soon after its formation; in 1808 he was elected F. R. S., and was awarded the Copley gold medal; he wrote several literary essays, besides able and graceful biographical notices of Davy, Wollaston, and others; his estimate of Priestley was read at the first meeting of the British Association at York in 1831; he collected materials for a history of chemical discovery but did not live to carry out the project; he advanced science and took a prominent place among chemists of the age; the Manchester Literary and Philosophical Society possesses a bust of Henry by Chantrey and a portrait by James Lonsdale; the latter was engraved by Henry Cousins in 1838.

(I) PROMINENT HENRYS OF AMERICA, PAST GENERATIONS

Following are some of the prominent Henrys in America of past generations:

ALEXANDER H—: Merchant; b. North Ireland, 1766; d. Philadelphia, Pa., 1847. He accumulated a fortune in the dry-goods business in Philadelphia. He was the first to introduce religious tracts into the United States and actively contributed to the promotion of education, relief of poverty and reformation of criminals.

ALEXANDER: Mayor of Philadelphia; s. of John H—; b. in Philadelphia, 1823; d. there, 1883; was admitted to the bar in 1844; served in the Councils, 1856-57; in 1858 he was elected to the Mayoralty by the People's Party. He managed the affairs of the city with great ability during the Civil War. On Lincoln's arrival in Philadelphia, February 21, 1861, Mayor Henry welcomed him and tendered him the hospitality of the city. For many years he was trustee of Univ. of Pennsylvania; a member of the park commission; inspector of Eastern Penitentiary.

ALEXANDER: Traveler; b. New Brunswick, N. J., 1739; d. Montreal, Canada, 1824. He accompanied the expedition of Sir Jeffrey Amherst in 1760. He embarked in the fur trade and, in 1761, went to Fort Mackinaw. On June 4, 1763, Henry, with others, was carried into captivity, but he escaped death by intervention of Wawatam, a Chippewa. Henry lived among the savages until June, 1764, when he went to Fort Niagara and was given command of an Indian battalion with which he accompanied the army of General John Bradstreet to Detroit. After the relief of that city he resumed the fur trade, traveling in that employment in the Northwest between Montreal and the Rocky Mountains. He published "Travels and Adventures in Canada and the Indian Territories Between the Years 1760 and 1776", New York, 1809.

CALEB SPRAGUE: Author; b. Rutland, Mass., 1804; d. Newburgh, N. Y., 1884. He took deacon's orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church and was ordained priest in 1836. From 1835-38 he was professor of intellectual and moral philosophy in Bristol College, Pa. In 1837, with Dr. Francis L. Hawks, he founded the "New York Review." Dr. Henry was professor of philosophy and history in New York Univ. 1839-52. During that period he edited "The Churchman" and was also political editor of the "New York Times" for a year or two. He published numerous lectures and addresses.

EDWARD LAMSON: Artist; b. Charleston, S. C., 1841. In 1869 he was elected a national academician. He painted chiefly genre pictures, interiors representing American Colonial life, and historical pieces. His "Old Clock on the Stairs" and "Morning Call in 1800" were shown at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876.

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS: Orator; b. Cherry Spring, Ky., 1804; d. Clarksville, Tenn., 1880; s. of William H.— (1761-1824). He was a member of the Kentucky legislature 1831-33, and a leader of the whig minority in Tennessee. From 1861 till close of the Civil War he was a member of the Confederate Senate.

• GUY VERNOR: Soldier; b. Fort Smith, Indian territory, 1839; commanded advance on Charleston in 1863; commanded a brigade in the Army of the James, 1864-65, and was wounded in the battle of Rose Bud Creek, Montana, with Sitting Bull, 1876.

JAMES: Historian; b. Philadelphia, Pa., 1809. He was president of the Moravian Historical Society and contributed to musical journals in the United States and Europe. He wrote "Sketches of Moravian Life and Character", 1859.

JOHN FLOURNAY: Physician; b. Henry's Mills, Ky., 1793; d. Burlington, Iowa, 1873. Graduated at College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, 1817. Elected to Congress, 1826-27. He practiced in Cincinnati, Bloomington, Ill., and Burlington, Iowa.

JOHN: Actor; b. Ireland about 1738; d. at sea, 1795; appeared at Drury Lane Theatre, London, in 1762, and later went to Jamaica, W. I., where he joined the "American company" of actors. On the opening night of the John Street Theatre in New York, December 7, 1767, he appeared as Aimwell in the "Beaux's Stratagem." At the beginning of the Revolution the company of actors went to the British West Indies. One of his favorite parts was Othello, in which he was blacked like a negro and dressed in the uniform of a British officer.

JOHN: Adventurer; b. in Ireland. He came to Philadelphia about 1793, edited "Brown's Philadelphia Gazette" and entered the army at the time of the troubles with France. He quitted the army and settled on a farm in northern Vermont, where he studied law and wrote articles for the press.

JOHN H—: Senator; b. Easton, Md., about 1750; d. there, 1798. He was a delegate from Maryland to the Continental Congress 1778-81 and 1784-87 and was elected to the United States Senate, serving from 1789-97, when he resigned, having been elected Governor of his State. He held this office until his death.

JOHN JOSEPH: Jurist; b. Lancaster, Pa., 1758; d. there, 1811. Took part in Arnold's expedition to Canada and was held a prisoner for nine months. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1785. In 1793 he was commissioned president judge of the Second Judicial District of Pennsylvania. (See picture.)

JOSEPH: Physicist; b. Albany, N. Y., 1797 or 1799; d. Washington, D. C., 1878. Henry was apprenticed to a watchmaker, but, upon reading Dr. Gregory's "Lectures on Experimental Philosophy, Astronomy and Chemistry", he determined to devote his life to the study of science. He was made professor of mathematics in the Albany Academy and began the series of brilliant experiments in electricity which linked his name with Franklin's. His first important discovery was that of producing the electro-magnet. This led, in 1830, to development of the "intensity" magnet, which made the electric telegraph a possibility. In the same year he constructed the first electro-magnetic telegraph. The study of meteorology was one to which he gave considerable thought. Many of his investigations conducted at Princeton have been of permanent value to science. He was nominated to the chair of natural philosophy in the Univ. of Pennsylvania. On the organization of the lighthouse board in 1852 he was made a member and from 1871 till his death was its chairman. Throughout his career in Washington he acted as confidential adviser on scientific matters to the Government. In 1849 he was elected president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and he was one of the original members of the National Academy of Science. Wrote valuable articles for the "American" and other cyclopedias. He edited the annual volumes of the Smithsonian Institute. A "Memorial of Joseph Henry" was ordered published by Congress, 1880.

MORRIS HENRY: Physician; b. London, England, 1835. Came to the United States and was graduated in medicine at Univ. of Vermont, 1860. During the Civil War he was assistant surgeon, then settled in New York and was surgeon-in-chief of the Emigrant Hospital, Ward's Island, 1872-80. He originated and edited "American Journal of Dermatology."

PATRICK: Statesman; b. Studley, Va., 1736; d. Red Hill, Va., 1799; s. of Alexander H— and Jean Robertson. His w. was Sarah Winston, of the English family of that name. He became a lawyer in 1760. On his twenty-ninth birthday, as member of the Virginia house of burgesses, he moved a series of resolutions defining the rights of the colony and pronounced the Stamp Act unconstitutional. After a speech of great eloquence ("Give me liberty or give me death"), described by Thomas Jefferson as surpassing any he had ever heard, Mr. H— carried five of his resolutions. Mr. H— at once became the leader in his colony. He was foremost in May, 1774, to call a Continental Congress. The first resistance by arms to British authority in that colony was his leading a volunteer force against Lord Dunmore, royal governor of Virginia, May, 1775, to compel him to restore the colony's gunpowder. He was elected to the Virginia Convention, May, 1776. He was active in forming the constitution, which served as a model for other States. In 1776 he was elected first governor of Virginia. In 1777 he planned and sent out the expedition under General Clarke, which conquered the vast territory northwest of the Ohio. He was a firm advocate of our right to the free navigation of the Mississippi, whose mouth was held by Spain. He offered the amendments that were recommended by the convention, the most important of which were adopted. Among other things he foretold: the abolition of slavery by Congress in a speech, June, 1788. He retired from public life in 1791. Washington's offer to make him Secretary of State in 1795 and afterward chief justice of the United States. In 1799 he was induced by Washington to offer himself for a seat in the legislature to resist the alien and sedition laws. He was elected, but died before taking his seat. (See picture.)

ROBERT: Educator; b. Charleston, S. C., 1792; d. Columbia, S. C., 1856; was minister to the French Huguenot congregation for two years, preaching alternately in French and English. He was professor of logic and moral philosophy in South Carolina College in 1818. In 1834-35 he was president, accepted chair of metaphysics and belles-letters in 1839, and was president again in 1842-45.

ROBERT PRYOR: B. Henry's Mills, Ky., 1788; d. Hopkinsville, Ky., 1826; s. of William H— (1761-1824). Studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1809. He was aide to his father in the war of 1812. He was elected to Congress as a Clay Democrat, serving from December, 1823, until his death.

THOMAS CHARLTON: Clergyman; b. Philadelphia, 1790; d.

Charleston, S. C., 1827. Ordained Presbyterian clergyman, 1818. He was pastor of the first church in Columbia, S. C., and of the second church in Charleston. Yale gave him the degree of D. D., 1824.

WILLIAM: Inventor; b. Chester County, Pa., 1729; d. Lancaster, Pa., 1786. He was appointed armorer to Braddock's troops. In 1758 he was commissioned Justice of the Peace. He was chosen to the Assembly in 1776, and treasurer for Lancaster County, 1777. He was a member of the Continental Congress in 1784-85.

WILLIAM: S. of William H—(1729-1786); b. Lancaster, Pa., 1757; d. Philadelphia, 1827. In 1808 he built a forge on the Bushkill, where the first iron that was manufactured in the country was drawn, March 9, 1809. In 1792 he was presidential elector for the State and voted for Washington.

WILLIAM: Soldier; b. Charlotte County, Va., 1761; d. Christian County, Ky., 1824. After the Revolution he took part in conflicts with Indians in Kentucky. He commanded a division in the Battle of Thames, 1813. General H— was a member of the Constitutional Convention of his State. (See picture.)

WILLIAM ALEXANDER: Canadian jurist; b. Halifax, Nova Scotia, 1816; was Mayor of Halifax, member of provincial council, 1849; solicitor-general, provincial secretary and attorney-general. He was instrumental in securing measures for protecting Canadian fisheries and in establishing a complete system of telegraph for Nova Scotia.

WILLIAM SEATON: Soldier; b. Albany, N. Y., 1816; d. New York City, 1851. Graduated at U. S. Military Academy, 1835. Served in the Florida war of 1841-42 and in the war with Mexico. Brevetted major for gallantry at Monterey in 1846.

WILLIAM WIRT: B. Red Hill, Va., 1831. Educated at Univ. of Va., where he took degree of M. A. in 1850. Served as State's attorney for his county; served in the legislature at Richmond and was vice-president of the Virginia Historical Society.

WILLIAM HENRY, the third of that name, was born August 15, 1796, and died at his home in the Wyoming Valley, May 22, 1878. Having an expert knowledge of metallurgy and indomitable energy, he was the first to recognize the rich mineral resources of the Lackawanna Valley and was the pioneer in their development, his attention being drawn to the locality in 1832, when the valley was covered with a primeval forest. In 1840 he induced his sons-in-law, Selden T. and James Scranton, and their kinsman, Colonel George W. Scranton, to join him in erecting the first blast furnace on the site of Scranton, and named it Harrison, in honor of General William Henry Harrison, the then candidate of the Whig Party for President of the United States. The name of the town was afterwards changed to Scranton, and finally to Scranton, now the third city in point of wealth and population in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. History must always regard Henry as its real founder.

(K) HENRY TOWNS, ETC.

There are in the United States, towns as follows: HENRY—Ark., Idaho, Ill., La., Nebr., S. C., S. Dak., Tenn., Va., W. Va. HENRY RIVER—N. C. HENRYTON—Md. HENRYVILLE—Ind., Pa., Tenn.

There are also in the United States numerous counties, townships, streets, avenues, etc., bearing the name "Henry." This is eloquent testimony to the high esteem in which the name is held in this country.

(L) HENRY CENSUS OF THE UNITED STATES

The compiler of HENRY FAMILY RECORDS has made up a list of Henry families from city and telephone directories of the United States, and from other sources, as follows:

ALA.	60	ME.	30	OKLA.	121
ARIZ.	16	MD.	70	ORE.	58
ARK.	42	MASS.	288	PA.	906
CALIF.	617	MICH.	260	R. I.	74
COLO.	91	MINN.	109	S. C.	11
CONN.	91	MISS.	29	S. D.	8
D. C.	56	MO.	205	TENN.	178
DEL.	25	MONT.	20	TEX.	302
FLA.	128	N. C.	55	UTAH	7
GA.	85	N. D.	6	VT.	28
IDAHO	20	NEBR.	52	VA.	67
ILL.	400	NEV.	WASH.	137
IND.	266	N. H.	24	W. VA.	86
IA.	108	N. J.	316	WISC.	52
KANS.	66	N. M.	7	WYO.	14
KY.	124	N. Y.	653
LA.	44	OHIO	583	Total	6994

To secure an estimate of the "Henry population" of the United States, we figure as follows:

	(a) Multiply by
By multiplying each figure of column (a) into the preceding figure, we have a total of.....	2
Only about half the names were taken from each directory consulted	2
Half of the Henrys reside in the rural districts or in small towns having no printed directories which were available to us	4
There are an average of more than four persons in each American family	2
Since Henry daughters marry and have as many descendants as the Henry sons, there are as many Henry descendants of "other names" as there are bearing the name Henry, though it is much easier to locate the latter.....	32
Conservative estimate of the Henry population of the United States, one-half of whom bear the name Henry and one-half of whom bear other names.....	223,808

The estimated Henry population of any of the States may be obtained by multiplying the figures shown by 32. There are Henrys in every State of the Union. The Henry population of the British Empire is probably equal to that in the United States.

(M) RELIGIONS OF THE HENRYS

For several centuries nearly all the Henrys lived in Scotland and North Ireland. Most of the Scotch and, likewise, the Henrys, were of the Presbyterian faith. Practically all the Henrys who went from Scotland to the North of Ireland, and their descendants, remained Presbyterian.

There are a few Henrys of the Catholic faith in the British Isles, but it is estimated that their number does not exceed two per cent. of the entire Henry population.

The Henrys who came from the British Isles to America continued in the faith of their fathers, for the most part, though their descendants in this country today will be found in the memberships of practically all the various churches. It is estimated that of all the Henrys in America who are church members, at least ninety-seven per cent. are of the Protestant faith.

Biographical sketches of Henrys appear in Who's Who in America. Their religious faiths are shown as follows: Catholic, 1; Methodist Episcopal, 3; Presbyterian, 3; Methodist, 2; United Brethren, 1; "Protestant", 5; religion not stated, 13. Total, 28.

(P) FAMILY RECORDS AND GENEALOGIES

Published and For Sale by

AMERICAN HISTORICAL-GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Compiled by

J. Montgomery Seaver, Genealogist

The contents are similar in all of these books. The larger ones contain more detail, especially on the American families. All of them contain the family Coat of Arms.

Hand-paintings of the Coats of Arms, and stationery with the Coats of Arms die-stamped in gold, can be furnished on each of these families, prices being the same as those quoted on preceding page.
